■ Quick Start: The Foundation Formula

Every effective prompt needs these core elements: [ROLE] + [OBJECTIVE] + [CONTEXT] + [INSTRUCTIONS + FORMAT + CRITERIA]

Role:

You are a content marketing expert.

Objective:

Draft an article post for “my company website blog”.

Context:

“My company website blog (provide URL) covers topics about [subject matter domain: accounting and technology]”.

List your existing topics and provide URLs like this:

• Title – URL of article

• SEO keywords

• Format (e.g., H1, H2, visuals, CTAs)

Theme: “How to improve productivity with 3 AI Tools at work.”

Keep it under 1,000 characters and maintain a conversational tone (CONSTRAINTS).

Instructions: Follow this Structure Exactly

- Make sure it contains body texts of up to 1,000 words that are SEO-friendly in English UK spelling and grammar. Do not include Singlish language .

- Use conversational and professional tone from a human being. Remove all robotic tones and manner.

- No hallucinations.

Your Prompt Engineering Playbook: Key Takeaways

• Start Small: Master simple prompts before chaining them.

• Define Outcomes: Always know what you want the AI to achieve.

• Iterate, Don’t Perfect: Treat prompts as drafts. Refine regularly.

• Be the Director: You're not just asking; you're directing the AI’s performance.

• Journal Your Prompts: Track what works and why to build your second brain.
